Had a conversion late yesterday with PCG. The changed wording which concludes that we are among the highest cost states and have no better than average quality was what they concluded after all the information we gave them, I said that even though they talk about it being in 2008 we at least need to understand how they are looking at things and where we think we are today. To better understand they will be sending me a list of states so we can see how our costs fit in. I expect that shortly. I said unless we understand the conclusion it does not help us.
