For now I think we are good, we intend to have this in a deliverable form late Monday, so stay tuned for possible last second requests.

As for the review, I am not sure how we will be handling that as we have been asked by the client to keep the proposal confidential. However, I understand your want to see what was, in the end, submitted on your behalf. Give us a bit of time to sort out a way to accomplish this in a way that keeps us all in safe space.

Do you guys need anything from us on Amazon? I think you said a final draft was going to be done on Oct 16. Will we be reviewing that?

Thanks for sending this, it is the first analysis I have seen that has attempted to use data.

And the approach is good and hidden in-between the lines of the RFP.

The first point about housing is BS, keep reading - and the final point is worth noting. The TLDR point is: Since there is no perfect City that ticks all of their boxes, Amazon needs a city that it can work with to alleviate weaknesses. This is a good point to make in our response to the RFP.

A few good maps too...
