Hello Professor Painter,

Your MSNBC commentary is both educational and insightful. I did not know of you until the campaign and election of Donald Trump. I appreciate your straight forward delivery, not allowing this administration off the hook for unethical behavior when it comes to potential conflicts of interest, obstruction of justice and whatever else they try to throw in the path of truth.

You make it easier for the lay person to understand some of the ethical issues of the day and you call it as you see it without spin, which I truly appreciate. You and some other MSNBC commentators are a calming affect on my anxious days caused by this less than forthcoming president and administration. I look forward to the day when this chapter in American Presidents, along with his entire cast of characters is over and voted out of office.

Continued success and I look forward to more spoken truth (which seems difficult to find these days) from you in your no nonsense delivery style. It's obvious you are a man of integrity.

Regards,
Bill Brosmer
