Dean Dean Jenkins:

I received an email from you today with school updates, etc., which was nice. I'm writing to you because of the behavior of one of your professors, Richard Painter.

I am a lifelong Democrat and share many positions with Professor Painter, so I hope you will believe me when I say this isn't about his politics or the fact he is running for office. It's his behavior on social media, which ranges from hysterical to outright abusive and misogynistic. I guess if the president behaves this way, I shouldn't be surprised that a U.S. Senate candidate does the same. But this candidate is an ETHICS professor at the school where I got my law degree.

I guess I thought the U of M law school was better than this. Maybe not.
